The first step in helping abused or neglected children is learning to recognize the signs of child abuse and neglect. The presence of a single sign does not prove child abuse is occurring in a family, but a closer look at the situation may be warranted when these signs appear repeatedly or in combination. Staff should also take cultural differences into consideration.

Signs of Physical Abuse

Consider the possibility of physical abuse when the child:

- Has unexplained burns, bites, bruises, broken bones, or black eyes
- Has fading bruises or other marks noticeable after an absence from school
- Seems frightened of the parents/guardians or caregivers, cries when it is time to go home
- Shrinks at the approach of adults
- Reports injury by a parent or another adult caregiver

Consider the possibility of physical abuse when the parent/guardian or other adult caregiver:

- Offers conflicting, unconvincing, or no explanation for the child's injury
- Describes child in a negative way
- Uses harsh physical discipline with the child
- Has history of abuse as a child

Signs of Neglect

Consider the possibility of neglect when the child:

- Is frequently absent from school
- Begs or steals food or money
- Lacks needed medical or dental care, immunization, or glasses
- Is consistently dirty and/or has severe body odor
- Lacks sufficient clothing for the weather
- States that there is no one at home to provide care

Consider the possibility of neglect when the parent/guardian and/or care giver:

- Appears to be indifferent to the child
- Seems apathetic or depressed
- Behaves irrationally or in a bizarre manner

- Abusing drugs and/or alcohol

Signs of Sexual Abuse

Consider the possibility of sexual abuse when the child:

- Has difficulty walking or sitting
- Suddenly refuse to participate in physical activities
- Report nightmares or bedwetting
- Experiences sudden change in appetite
- Demonstrates bizarre, sophisticated, or unusual sexual knowledge or behavior
- Contracts sexually transmitted diseases
- Runs away
- Reports sexual abuse

Consider the possibility of sexual abuse when the parent/guardian and/or caregiver:

- Is unduly protective of the child or severely limits the child's contact with other children, especially of the opposite sex
- Is secretive or isolated
- Is jealous or controlling with family members

Signs of Emotional Maltreatment

Consider the possibility of emotional maltreatment when the child:

- Shows extremes in behavior, such as overly compliant or demanding behavior, extreme passivity, or aggression
- Is either inappropriately acting as an adult (ex: parenting other children) or inappropriately infantile (ex: rocking or head banging)
- Is delayed in physical or emotional development
- Has attempted or talked about suicide
- Reports lack of attachment to the parent/guardian

Consider the possibility of emotional maltreatment when the parent/guardian and/or caregiver:

- Constantly blames, belittles, or berates the child
- Is unconcerned about the child and refuses to consider offers of help for the child's problems
- Overly rejects the child
